Clallam Transit Celebrates "Transit Employee Appreciation Day"

In April, Clallam Transit System Board members approved a resolution to proclaim May 11 as "Transit Employee Appreciation Day" in Clallam County in celebration of National Transportation Week. This action was taken to remind the community of the professionalism and dedication of public transit employees in providing reliable and courteous service to all the citizens of the county.

National Transportation Week is designated annually through the issuance of a proclamation by the President of the United States. The proclamation invites the people of the United States to observe National Transportation Week with appropriate ceremonies and activities as a tribute to the men and women who, night and day, move goods and individuals throughout the United States.

There are 98 public transit employees in Clallam County who contribute to the safety and well-being of the passengers of the Clallam Transit System. These transit employees provide commendable service to over 800,000 passengers countywide and travel more than 1.6 million vehicles miles annually. These transit workers who work "beyond the call of duty" deserve to be recognized for their extraordinary efforts.

Managers will prepare a traditional hot breakfast to thank all the employees for providing the best service they can every day to the public they serve.
